MOFUSSIL AND RAILWAY DIRECTORY.

AHMEDABAD.

Ahmedabad is the principal city of the district and head-quarters of Gujarat, Northern Division of the Bombay Presidency. It is also a military station. It ranks first amongst the cities of Gujarat and is one of the most ancient, historical, picturesque and artistic cities in the Bombay Presidency. King Ahmedshah of Gujarat founded this city in the year 1413 A.D. and hence it is named Ahmedabad. It stands on the raised left bank of the River Sabarmati, about 173 ft. above the mean sea level. It has ancient walls stretching practically all round the city, but as it has recently developed even beyond the city walls, these walls are being demolished at certain places and it is under contemplation of the Municipality to demolish the city walls by a scheme known as the City Wall Improvement Scheme. These walls enclose an area of more than two square miles and are from 15 to 20 feet in height with 14 gates and at almost every 50 yards a bastion and a tower. In the early days of its prosperity it is said to have contained a population of about nine lakhs of souls, and so great was its wealth that some of the merchants and traders were believed to have possessed fortunes of not less than a million sterling. During the disorders in the latter part of the 18th century it suffered severely and in 1818, when it came under the British rule, it was greatly depopulated and appeared like a melancholy wreck. But on peace being established the trade and commerce of the city soon developed and now it has undergone a marked revival, especially since the development of the textile industry. There are 70 cotton mills and four other factories in the city. Its population at the census of 1921 numbered 274,007 inclusive of the Cantonment. It has become an important railway junction and has refreshment rooms, with sleeping accommodation at the station.

Ahmedabad is rich in monuments of great architectural merit. There are many places worth seeing, viz., Kankaria tank, with Nagina Vadi in the centre of the tank founded by King Kutubshah; Sarkhej Mosque; Jumma Masjid; the three historic gates; Mosque of King Ahmedshah and his wife (Begum) situated in Manekchowk, the heart of the city; Mosque of Makarba; Shah Alam's and Queen Seekari's mosque; Nar Narayen Dev's temple of the Swaminarayen Sect founded by Shree Shahjanand Swami; Ellis' Bridge, Queen Victoria's Garden and Madhav Bagh, Hathibha's Vadi, etc.

There are two good hotels known as Grand Hotel and Bombay Hotel which provide both boarding and lodging to those living in Western style. There are several lodges and hotels for Hindus and Mahomedans.

There are several clubs, the leading club open to all classes of men and women being the Gujarat Club situated just behind the District and Sessions Court buildings. It is a social club with Sheth Ambalal Sarabhai, a prominent mill agent as its president. There are special clubs for Europeans and Parsees known as European and Parsi Gymkhanas. There is also the Reform Club and special clubs known as the Rajnagar Club, and merchants' club. There are also recreation clubs like the Hindu Gymkhana, Railwaymen's Institute, Postal Union, Baronet Gymkhana and others. These clubs generally provide a meeting place and also provide for games, etc.

There are some mills in Ahmedabad which are not in the Association. Sheth Chamanlal Girdhardas Parekh is the President of the Association. To avoid labour troubles there is a permanent Board of arbitration consisting of Mr. M. K. Gandhi (representing Labour Union) and Sheth Mangaldas Girdhardas Parekh (representing the Mill Owners' Association) and in case of difference of opinion between this board a Sur Punch is selected and his decision as well as the Board's decisions are binding on both the Association and Union, and by this mutual arrangement harmonious relations are being maintained between the Employers and the Employees. Mr. G. I. Patel, B.A., is the Secretary of the Association.

AHMEDNAGAR.

Ahmednagar, an important district in the Bombay Deccan, embraces an area of 6,623 square miles and a population of 945,012 souls. To the North-West and North lies Nasik District. On the North-East the line of the Godavari River separates Ahmednagar from the dominions of the Nizam. On the South-East and South-West lie the district of Sholapur and Poona. Further North the District stretches westwards until it touches Thana. The principal geographical feature of the District is the chain of the Sahyadri hills, the chief river—the Godavari. The bulk of the population belongs to the Maratha race, who are generally cultivators and artificers; but the soil is poor and the District liable to famine. Ahmednagar, the head-quarters of the District, figured prominently in the Duke of Wellington's Indian campaigns. The town itself is unattractive, but there is a fine fort, half a mile to the East of the City. Ahmednagar is a station on the Dhond-Manmad line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. There is a good travellers' bungalow.

It is bounded on the north by the Districts of Belgaum, Bijapur and the Ramdurg State; on the south by the State of Mysore; on the east by Hyderabad Territory and the Bellary District of the Madras Presidency; and on the west by the District of North Kanara. Area, 4,604 square miles, with a population of 1,036,924. Dharwar is roughly divided into two belts, characterised by differences of configuration, soil and products. To the north and north-east spread vast unbroken plains of black soil which produce abundant crops of cotton. The western belt of the District is traversed by low hills; this tract consists of a succession of low ranges covered with herbage and brushwood. The ranges are separated by flat valleys, and it is to these valleys and the lower slopes of the hills that cultivation is chiefly confined. Farther west the country is still more hilly, and the trees increase in size towards the frontier of North Kanara. A District in the Bombay Presidency in the West Karnatic. It is bounded on the North by Belgaum District; on the East by Dharwar District and Mysore; on the South by South Kanara; and on the West by the Arabian Sea and Goa. The Sahyadri Range of the Western Ghats runs through the District from North to South, dividing it into two parts—the uplands and the lowlands. Except on the coast and the banks of the streams and in the more open glade, the whole is one broad expanse of woodland and forests. The forests give its character to the District. They flourish both below and above the Sahyadri Hills, and produce large quantities of timber, chiefly in teak. Karwar, the headquarters town, possesses a fine harbour.

KARACHI.

Karachi, like the other great seaports of India—Bombay, Calcutta and Madras—may be regarded as almost a creation of British rule. Before it came into British possession in 1842, it was an insignificant town with a small coasting trade. Since the introduction of settled administration, splendid harbour works have been carried out, the town has been linked with the Indian railway system by a series of important trunk lines, and it has become the seat of a large and flourishing commerce. At large expenditure the difficult, though conveniently situated, harbour has been so improved that vessels of large tonnage can lie alongside the deep water berths in perfect security, and Karachi is now the principal outlet for the extensive grain trade of the Punjab, besides being the seat of a considerable import traffic. Karachi is the head-quarters of the Commissioner in Sind, and an important air port and military station. The climate, owing to the prevalence of sea-breezes during eight months of the year, has a better reputation for healthiness than any other in Sind. The low situation of the city and the near neighbourhood of the marshland render the atmosphere both moist and warm, but the heat during the hottest months cannot compare with that experienced in the interior. The mean annual temperature, calculated from data extending over nineteen years may be stated at 77° F. The population at the last census was 2,47,058. There are several hotels near the station.

KHANDALA.

Khandala is at the top of the Bhor Ghaut, at an elevation of about 2,000 feet above sea-level. The Railway Station is within a convenient, and, in fact, walking distance of almost all the bungalows, and is also within easy reach of the European Convalescent Home, in connection with St. George's Hospital of Bombay. There are barracks for convalescent troops, a rest house for professors of the St. Xavier's College of Bombay, the Convent Schools; small detached cottages for convalescent Parsis, one dharmashala (built by Sir Jamsetji Jijibhoy, Bt.) for Parsis. At the extreme end of the hill is situated the G. I. P. Railway bungalow, built for the use of Railway Engineer in charge of the construction of the works of the Railway Ghauts and from here a most picturesque view is obtained of the old reversing station and the valley below. "The Duke's Nose" (a promontory of one of the hills) is worth a visit. Close to the Railway station is situated the late Hon'ble Mr. N. N. Wadia's Charitable Dispensary and Hospital, now in charge of the Lonavla Municipality, but with a Managing Committee of its own. Of hotels, there are the Khandala Hotel for Europeans, and one for Indians (mostly for Parsis). The latter is situated on a hill commanding a pretty view of a part of the ghaut Railway. At some distance, in a locality called Kune, is situated a Mission House, with workshops for carpets, darees, dairies, cheese, butter factory, for all of which the aboriginal natives (mostly Katkaris) are taught and employed under the supervision of the Jesuit Fathers. Khandala is supplied with Municipal water by means of mains from Toongarlee, a small hill near Lonavla.

KHANDESH (EAST).

This is the Easternmost district of the Bombay Presidency. It was formed out of the 11 Eastern Talukas of the old Province of Khandesh on 15th November 1906. These Talukas are Chalisgaon, Amalner, Parola, Chopda, Erandol, Pachora (with Bhadgaon Mahal), Jamner, Jalgaon, Yawal, Raver, Bhusawal (with Edlabad Mahal).

The District is bounded on the North by the Satpura mountains and Indore State, on the East by Nimar and Berar, on the South by His Exalted Highness the Nizam's Dominions and on the West by Nasik and West Khandesh Districts. The Province of Khandesh is not part of the Deccan, but is the lower part of the basin of the Tapti, and the whole of the basins of the Girna and its affluents. East Khandesh comprises the Eastern portion of these basins and is entirely watered by these two rivers and their affluents. The District has natural boundaries to the north and south, viz., the Satpura mountains on the north and the Satmala or Ajanta range on the south. Besides these, there are various smaller irregular ranges in the District. In the valley between these, and more especially in the valley of the Tapti proper, the District presents an extraordinarily fertile appearance. In this respect it differs widely from the Deccan. The roads are bordered with fine trees and there are several mango groves around most villages.

The Satpura mountains in the North consist of difficult uninhabited country which, however, produces excellent bamboos and grass, and fair timber.

Irrigation is very little practised in the District. The rainfall is usually both general and regular, which fact in itself discourages irrigation. The District probably grows more cotton for its size than any other in India and contains 5 Spinning and Weaving Factories besides 140 ginning and pressing mills. The chief export is, of course, cotton: minor exports, gram, linseed, sesamum and groundnut.

The area of the District is 4,551 square miles and its population 1,075,837.

Jalgaon is the capital of the District and is favourably situated at the junction of the G. I. P. and T. V. Railways, which between them traverse the whole length and most of the breadth of the District. The Imperial Bank of India has opened a branch at Jalgaon.

It consists of the six talukas of Shirpur, Shahada, Taloda, Sindkheda, Nandurbar and Nawapur, all of which border on the Tapti River, and the two Talukas of Dhulia and Sakri in which the conditions approximate more closely to those of the Deccan. The District is much less developed than East Khandesh and in the west is still very wild in places. KOLHAPUR.

The State of Kolhapur is the premier State in the Bombay Presidency. It is bounded on the north by the river Warna, which separates it from the British District of Satara, on the North-East by the river Krishna, on the East and South by the District of Belgaum and on the west by the Sahyadri mountains which divide it from the Sawantwadi State on the South-West and Ratnagiri on the West. The State is divided into 7 Petas, and 3 Mahals. The area of the State is 3,217 square miles, the population is 957,137 of which 866,648 are Hindus.

Kolhapur became a separate Principality in 1730 by a Treaty of Partition between Shahu of Satara and Sambhaji of Kolhapur, both being grandsons of Shivaji, the Founder of the Mahratta Empire, through his two sons, Sambhaji and Rajaram whose widow Tarabai contested Shahu's claim to the Rulership of the Empire itself from 1708 when Shahu returned to the Deccan from his captivity at Delhi. Sambhaji died in 1760 and he was succeeded by his adopted son Shivaji who ruled upto the year 1812. Shivaji had to fight many a battle with Patwardhans who were then the Jahagirdars of the Peshwas. Through the intervention of Mount Stuart Elphinstone, under the Treaty of 1812, the disputes between Kolhapur and the Peshwa came to an end. By this Treaty, the Talukas of Chikodi and Manoli, the bone of contention between Kolhapur and the Peshwa, were ceded to the Peshwa. On the annexation of the Peshwa's kingdom in 1818, the said Talukas were given back in full sovereignty to Sambhaji alias Abasaheb Maharaj under a Sanad issued by General Sir Thomas Munroe in appreciation of his support to the cause of the Company's Government. In the prime of his youth, Abasaheb Maharaj was murdered in 1821 and was succeeded by his brother Shahaji alias Buvasaheb Maharaj.

Owing to his acts of aggression, the British Government had to intervene in 1826 and 1827 and by the Treaty of 1827 Buvasaheb had to give back the Talukas of Chikodi and Manoli to the British Government. Buvasaheb died in 1838 and as his sons Shivaji alias Babasaheb and Shahu alias Chimasaheb were minors, Diwansaheb Maharaj, wife of Abasaheb Maharaj and aunt of the young Maharaja, administered the affairs of Kolhapur till 1844. As the administration was found most unsatisfactory, the Government of Bombay appointed Rao Bahadur Daji Krishna Pandit as Principal Karbhari. As he made certain very drastic changes in the administration, the Gadkaris of Samangad, Bhudargad and other forts rose in rebellion and the British Government had to quell the disturbance with the help of their Military Force at the cost of the State. The Government thereupon appointed Major D. C. Graham as the Political Superintendent who administered the State with the help of Daji Pandit as Principal Karbhari. The administration of the State was handed over to Babasaheb Maharaj in 1862 after he had signed the Agreement of that year. On his death in 1866, he was succeeded by his adopted son, Rajaram Maharaj, a promising young prince, who died at Florence in 1870. Shivaji IV was then adopted; but as he was found to be insane, the management of the State, which was taken over by the Political Agent since the demise of Babasaheb Maharaj in 1866 owing to the minority of the Maharajas, was handed over in 1882 to the Regency in Council presided over by Meherban Abasaheb, the Chief of Kagal Senior. On the death of Shivaji at Ahmednagar in 1883, the late lamented Shri Shahu Maharaj, son of the Regent Abasaheb, Chief of Kagal Senior who was the son of Princess Balabai, sister of His Highness Babasaheb Maharaj, was adopted in 1884. He was installed on the Gadi by His Excellency Lord Harris, the then Governor of Bombay in 1894. His was a powerful personality and he made many reforms in the State. He was a staunch supporter of the backward classes in the Deccan and tried his best to elevate them and the Depressed Class Communities. He enhanced the prestige of the State which was at its lowest ebb when he assumed the reins of Government. Residuary criminal jurisdiction over the Feudatory Jahagirdars was restored to Kolhapur in 1903 by Lord Northcote. He made primary education free and compulsory in 1917. His sad demise took place on the 6th May 1922.

The present Ruler His Highness Lieut. Colonel Sir Shri Rajaram Chhatrapati Maharaj, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Maharaja of Kolhapur, succeeded to the Gadi on the 6th May 1922 on the demise of his father. LONAVLA.

This hill station is situated at the top of the Bhore Ghaut incline about 2,300 feet above sea-level. For the Railway Ghat working the G. I. P. Railway Company have Locomotive Workshops and a large number of European and Indian employés are therefore located on this hill station. There are extensive Railway quarters, mostly for European employés. All the Ghaut engine-drivers and guards are quartered here, with Headquarters for a District and Assistant Loco. Superintendent, a Resident Railway Engineer, and a Railway Dispensary and Hospital Resident European Surgeon, with two Indian Assistants. There are also the Railway Co-operative Stores and a Railway School for Europeans and Indian employés and a Railway Institute with Reading Room and Library and Tennis Courts for Railway Officers and employés.

Khandalla and Lonavla, with a few other towns and villages, are in charge of the Lonavla Municipality, established in 1877. The Railway has a Municipality of its own. The Government Post and Telegraph Offices are of the 2nd class. There are Church of England, Methodist, and Roman Catholic Churches. There are two Masonic Lodges. Of the Lakes may be mentioned the Tata Sons Hydro-Electric Works Lake at Walwan within easy walk and drive over a built road), their smaller Lake near the Ry. (Woods), and the Lonavla Municipality's Water Works on the top of the Toognarlee Hill close by. Fishing is allowed both at the Bhushi and the Valvan Lakes, the latter being the most suited for the purpose. A permit can be obtained locally from the Chief Engineer's office at Lonavla on payment of a fee for every day of Re. one only with the use of the Company's boat. Similarly special and ordinary permits are obtainable from the Tata Hydro Electric Co.'s head office at Bombay, Bombay House, Fort. The boat is given to the first applicant and the Company supplies no coolies for rowing, etc. Each one should make his own arrangement The Railway houses are supplied with water from the Railway's Bhoosee Tank, about a mile-and-half away from the Railway Station. The town of Lonavla and its adjacent villages and suburbs are supplied with water from the Municipal Water Works at Toongarlee. There are Anglo-Vernacular Municipal Schools for boys and girls. The Rye, the Lonavla Woods, is well known for picnics and as a camping ground for Government Officers during the warm season.

About 2½ miles from the Railway is situated the "Tiger's Leap," a promontory, which commands a picturesque view of the valley below. The famous ancient Karla Caves are situated on a hill about five miles from Lonavla and it is reached by a built road up to the foot of the hill and visitors either walk or can be carried up to it by means of chairs. A clerk in charge of the caves is stationed there for assisting visitors in viewing the Caves. Tongas and victorias can be hired throughout the year. From the Railway Station of Malwali, nearly 3 miles from Lonavla, visitors can proceed to view the once well-known Lohgadh Fort (now partially demolished) on the top of a hill. The approach to it is by no means easy and visitors must arrange beforehand for chairs—slung on poles—to be sent to the Railway station from the Karla Caves hill or village. This Fort was formerly used as a State prison by the Peshwas. About 5 miles by road from Lonavla is the Sakar Pathar Hill, It is a well-known shooting ground and big game may be found, with casual visits of panthers.

The following are the heights of the important Forts :—

Fort of Lohgad	3,412	feet above the Sea level.
Fort of Visapur	3,547	do.
Fort of Rajmachi which stands on the top of the Sihadri Range and which commands a grand view of Matheran, Konkan and even part of Bombay ..	2,710	do.
Duke's Nose	2,720	do.

The rainfall varies from 160 to 250 inches, but the yearly average is about 160 inches.

The Municipality has introduced Electric street lights in Lonavla and Khandala and has constructed New Vegetable and Beef Markets on the modern sanitary principles.

With the Electrification of the G. I. P. Railway lines between Bombay and Poona, Visitors from Bombay will be able to reach Lonavla within one hour and forty minutes. The Railway Authorities are contemplating running an office train shortly which will add to the many charms of this hill station for many to reside permanently on these hill stations, coupled with the introduction of cheap Season tickets between Bombay and Lonavla.

NAWANAGAR (JAMNAGAR).

A full powered Indian State having political relation with the Government of India through the Agent to the Governor-General in the States of Western India since October 1924, lying between 21°-44′ and 22°-58′ N. latitude and 69°-10′-30″ and 71°-33′-30″ E. longitude on the southern shore of the Gulf of Cutch, with an area of 3,791 sqr. miles, the largest by far in the province. It is bounded on the north by the Gulf and the Rann of Cutch; on the east by the State of Morvi, Rajkot, Dhrol and Gondal; on the south by the Sorath Division of Kathiawar; and on the west by the Okha Rann and the Arabian Sea. It is mostly flat, but a little more than one-third of the Barda Hills are within its limits. Mount Venu, the highest point of the Barda Hills, is 2,057 feet above sea level. The principal rivers are the Bhadar, the Vartu, the Aji, the Und, and the Dondi. The harbours of Jodiya, Salaya and Navanagar or Bedi and Rozi are situated within the State. Mangrove swamps line the shores of the gulf, affording large supplies for firewood and camel pasture.

The land produces both garden and dry crops. Irrigation is provided by draw-wells, by artificial tanks and by aqueducts from rivers. The principal products are grain, cotton, til and castorseed; bajra, wheat and gram are the staple food crops. Wheat is produced with and without irrigation. The only forests of any importance are those in the northern portion of the Barda Hills and the new forest in the Dalasa Hills.

Marble of different qualities is found in the Kandorana and Bhanwad Talukas. Iron occurs in the Khambhalia paragana, but owing to foreign competition it is not able to hold its own. A pearl fishery lies off the coast on the northern shores of the State. The pearls are of varying sizes but of a very beautiful colour and fine lustre. Cloth and silk, as well as gold and silver embroidery, brocade, turbans and saris are the chief manufactures. The dyeing industry which employs a considerable number of people is very flourishing. The dyes are much admired, and their excellence is traditionally attributed to the quality of the water of the Rangmati river, which flows by Nawanagar Town, along with the Nagmati river.

Jamnagar City is the capital of the State. It is 51 miles from Rajkot by railway owned by the State. It is almost entirely built of stone, and is a, walled town. It shows every sign of prosperity. It is nearly four miles in circuit. The population is chiefly industrial and commercial and they produce fine silk and gold embroidery. The place is also famous for its perfumery and oils and for the Kanku powder. The climate is very pleasant and temperate throughout the year. It is particularly enjoyable being cool and bracing from November to March. The palaces of Koth Lakhota, Lal Bungalow, etc., are picturesque. The new Palace (Pratap Villas), Rozi Bunder, Vijarkhi tank and Balachadi (one of the pleasantest hot weather resorts in Kathiawar) are some of the chief objects of interest. The City and the Para contains a population of nearly forty-five thousand souls.

Population 409,192. Revenue Rs. ninety lakhs.

The State is divided into the following Mahals (territorial divisions), viz.:—

Panchkoshi, Jodiya, Paddhari, Lalpur, Atkot, Kalawad, Kandorana-Khambhalia, Bhanwad, Jodhpur, Kalyanpur and the following Sub-Mahals, viz., Wanthali, Chela, Balambha, Amran, Padana, Bhadla, Nikava, Mewasat, Salaya, Satapur, Ranpur, Wadala, Bhatia and Rawal. Revenue about Rs. 12,00,000. The chief town, Palitana, is a station on the Bhavnagar State (Kathiawar) Railway. Palitana is justly celebrated for its Jain temples on the Shatrunjaya Hill, situated within the Palitana jurisdiction. This hill is sacred to Adinath, the first of the Jain Saints (Tirthankars). The summit, which is divided into two peaks, with the valley between partly built over by a wealthy Jain merchant, is covered with temples, amongst which the most famous are those of Adinath, Kumarpal, Vimalsha, Sampriti Raja and Chawmukh. This last is the most lofty temple on the hill and can be clearly distinguished at a distance of 25 miles Shatrunjaya is the most sacred of the five sacred hills of the Jains. Mr. Kinloch Forbes describes it as the "first of all places of pilgrimage, the bridal hall of those who would win everlasting rest." Owing to the special sanctity of Shatrunjaya, all members of the Jain faith feel it a duty to perform, if possible, at least one pilgrimage here during their life. Palitana is also noted for its breed of horses, particularly beautiful typical Kathi horses, in which its Rulers have been taking a warm and personal interest.

POONA.

Poona, the ancient seat of the Peshwas, and now the Military capital of the Deccan and also the head-quarters of the Government of Bombay from July to November, stands on the right bank of the Mutha River, 119 miles south-east from Bombay. The city proper extends along the Mutha for about 1¼ miles inland; its length is about 2 miles from east to west, and its breadth about 1¾ miles, the total area being about 2¾ square miles. The population at the Census of 1921 was 222,815. Historically Poona is a city with a past, and is the scene of some of the most hard-fought triumphs of war and diplomacy in the annals of British Rule in India. Worth of the town is the Military cantonment, and within cantonment limits northwards to the Mutha-Mulla river and for 2 miles along the road leading to Kirkee are the houses of the greater part of the European population. Kirkee, 3 miles from Poona, the centre of the Artillery garrison, is the site of the famous battle which decided the fate of the Deccan, and 4 miles from Poona is Ganeshkind, the handsome residence of the Governor of Bombay.

The climate of Poona, due to its altitude, is temperate all the year round, being delightfully cool and bracing between October and March, and very enjoyable during the monsoon season. The hottest months are April and May, but the heat is dry and by no means as trying as even a lower temperature is along the coast or in the plains. The air, especially in the cold months, is invigorating, and Poona may be said to possess one of the most suitable climates for Europeans in India. It is doubtless largely for this reason that has been selected as the seat of the Bombay Government during the monsoon season and the head-quarters of the Southern Command.

PORBANDAR.

A First Class Indian State, in the Sorath Division of Kathiawar, situated to the west of the Peninsula. It consists of a strip along the shore of the Arabian Sea, nowhere more than 24 miles broad; area 642¼ square miles with one town and 105 villages. The Lime Stone known as Porbandar Stone is chiefly quarried in the Barda Hills, and is still much prized by both sculptor and builder. The best quarry is at Adityana, near the Station of Ranawao on the Porbandar State Railway at about 10 miles distance from Porbandar. Valuable granophyres and other massive rock suitable for both building purposes and road metalling also exist in considerable quantity in the Barda district of the State. The Hindu Temples at Visavada and Madhavpur are of considerable interest to antiquarians. Porbandar, the chief town, is connected with the Kathiawar Railway System. It is a famous and busy port on the Western Coast of Kathiawar, trading directly with Burma, Busrah, Persian Gulf, East Africa, Europe and other chief ports of India. It is also a town of much sanctity formerly known as "Sudamapuri" and thus generally included in the Dwarka pilgrimage.

The coast tracts offer special facilities for the cultivation of the cocoanut.

Porbandar Ghee has a great reputation and a ready sale both in India and Africa. There are several cotton gins and a cotton press in the town. It offers special facilities for the timber trade. There is a fully equipped Cement Factory, belonging to the Indian Cement Co., situated on the creek to the west of the town. There is an Oil Mill and several Flour Mills in the town. The Imperial Bank of India has opened a Branch at Porbandar. A Spinning and Weaving Mill is expected to be shortly established. A weaving factory is being run on a modest scale. Arrangements are made to start the "Porbandar Tiles Works." The Nadia Salt Works have been recently established at Porbandar and the Distemper Manufacturing Company has started Distemper manufacture.

RATNAGIRI.

A British District in the Konkan or Southern Division of the Bombay Presidency. It is bounded on the North by the Native State of Janjira and the Kolaba District; on the East by Satara District and the Native State of Kolhapur; on the South by the Sawantwadi State and the Portuguese possessions of Goa; and on the West by the Arabian Sea. The District may be described generally as rocky and rugged. Near the coast it consists of a bare elevated plateau, intersected by numerous creeks and navigable rivers, flowing between steep hills. These rivers have along their banks the chief seaports and almost all the fertile land of the District. Ten miles or so inland the country becomes more open; but advancing a little farther, it is occupied by spurs of the Sahyadri Hills. This range itself forms the continuous eastern boundary, running parallel to the coast, at distances varying from 30 to 45 miles. It varies in height from 2,000 to 3,000 feet, though some of the peaks attain an altitude of 4,000 feet. Whilst the banks of the rivers produce fine crops of rice in the rains, and of pulse in the cold weather and some of the inland valleys exhibit the utmost fertility, the soil is, as a rule, poor and barren, and supports with difficulty its dense population, a large proportion of whom migrate to Bombay in the fair season. Ratnagiri, the headquarters town, is open and faces the sea. There is no railway connection, and communication is by steamer with Bombay and by motor with Kolhapur 82 miles away. Population of the District is 1,302,528.

SATARA.

A District in the Central Division of the Bombay Presidency. It is bounded on the North by the States of Bhor and Phaltan; on the South by the River Varna, separating it from Kolhapur and Sangli States; on the East by Sholapur District and the States of the Pant Pratinidhi and the Chief of Jath; and on the West by the Sahyadri Hills, separating it from the Districts of Kolaba and Ratnagiri. Area, 4,910 square miles; population, 1,026,259. Language spoken—Marathi. From Mahableshwar in the north-west corner of the District, 4,717 feet above the sea, start two hill ranges of equal height and nearly at right angles to each other—one the main range of the Sahyadri running towards the south and forming the western boundaries of the Districts and the other the Mahadeo range of hills, which, going first in an easterly and then a south-easterly direction, extends towards the eastern boundary, where it sinks gradually into the plain. These hills throw out numerous spurs over the District, forming the valleys of the several streams which make up the head-waters of the Krishna, one of the largest rivers in Western India, except near Mahableshwar, and in the valley of the Koyna, the hills of the District are very low and have a strikingly bare and rugged aspect. The soils of the District belong to three main classes—red in the hills and black and light coloured in the plains. The black soil, especially along the valley of the Krishna and its tributaries, is very fertile, yielding two crops a year. The uncertain and scanty rainfall makes that part of the District East of the railway, most likely to suffer from failure of the crops. Satara, the head-quarters town, is 10 miles from Satara Road station on the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.

SAWANTWADI STATE.

Sawantwadi is one of the ancient Mahratta States in Western India. It is a compact territory unbroken by the lands of other States or districts and is about fifty miles long and from 10 to 30 miles broad. The State comprises an area of 925 square miles and is bounded on the North by the Malwan Sub-Division of the Ratnagiri District and is separated by the line of the Sahyadri hills, on the north-east from Kolhapur territory, and on the east and south-east, from the British District of Belgaum. To the south lie the Dicholi and Pedna sub-divisions of the Portuguese territory of Goa, and on the west and north-west the Ratnagiri sub-divisions of Vengurla and Malwan. The general aspect of the country is strikingly picturesque. The population of the Sawantwadi State is 2,30,589 according to the latest Census returns of 1931, out of which 2,19,386 i.e. 95 per cent are Hindus, 5,030 i.e. about 2·1 per cent are Mohamedans, 6,068 i.e. 2.6 per cent are Native Christians and the rest are Jains and other Hindus. For administrative purposes, the State is divided into two Pethas (sub-divisions) of Kudal and Banda, each being in charge of a Kamavisdar who is responsible to the Diwân of this State.

The State pays no tribute to the British Government. It is rich in forests of teak especially near the Sahyadri hills, blackwood, ain, kher and jambha. Near the sea the more important trees are the jackwood, mango and bhirand. The principal fruits are mangoes, plantains, citrons, limes and jack fruit. Cocoanut and cashew-nuts are very plentiful. The staple agricultural produce in the State is rice but the quantity being insufficient for the wants of the people, a good deal is imported from outside. Iron ore of fair quality is found in the neighbourhood of the Ramghat in the Sahyadri Range. The Akeri stone, a slate coloured talc-schist, extremely hard, compact and heavy is unrivalled for building purposes. The principal sources of income are (1) Land Revenue, (2) Forest and (3) Abkari. The gross revenue based on the average of the five years is Rs. 6,64,775.

The principal industries of the State consist of gold and silver embroidery work on both leather and cloth, fans, baskets and boxes of kas-kas grass ornamented with gold thread and beetle wings; lacquered toys and playing cards, and elegant drawing room ornaments carved from the horn of the buffalo and bison.

A District in the Deccan, Bombay Presidency, except Barsi taluk, which is surrounded by the Nizam's territory. Sholapur is bounded on the North by Ahmednagar District; on the East by the Nizam's Dominions and Akalkot State; on the South by Bijapur District and the Jath and Patwardhan States; and on the West by Satara, Poona and Ahmednagar Districts, and the States of Phaltan and Atpadi. The District generally is flat and undulating. Most of the surface rolls in long low uplands separated by hollows, with an occasional level. The shallow soiled uplands are suitable for pasture, and the deep-soiled lowlands, under careful tillage, yield the richest crops. From time to time the District suffers severely from drought, to which its situation and the treeless surface of the country expose it. Sholapur town, the headquarters of the District, is a station on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. There is a fine old fort and a travellers' bungalow.

SURAT.

A British District in Gujarat, Bombay Presidency, with an area of 1,662 square miles. It is bounded on the North by Broach District and Baroda territory, on the East by the States of Baroda, Rajpipla, Bansda and Dharampur, on the South by Thana District and the Portuguese territory of Daman, and on the West by the Arabian Sea. Surat District consists of wide, alluvial plain, stretching between the Dang Hills and the coast, from the Kim River on the North to Damanganga on the South—a distance of about 80 miles. Much of the soil is rich and very fertile, but the eastern border of the District consists of less fruitful lands. Surat, the chief town and administrative headquarters, is situated on the south bank of the Tapti River and 14 miles from the sea. During the 17th and 18th centuries Surat ranked as the chief export and import centre of India. After the assumption of the entire Government by the British in 1800, prosperity, which had deserted the twon towards the end of last century, reappeared; but the steady transfer of trade to Bombay, combined with the famine in 1813 in Northern Gujarat, continued to undermine its commercial importance. Though now overshadowed by Bombay, it is still the centre of a brisk trade. It contains many interesting memorials of the days of John Company, especially the tombs of the early European residents.

THANA.

A British District in the Bombay Presidency. Area, 3,434 square miles; it is bounded on the North by the Portuguese territory of Daman and the Surat District; on the East by the Districts of Nasik, Ahmednagar and Poona; on the South by the Bombay Suburban District; and on the West by the Arabian Sea. Thana consists of a distinct strip of low land, intersected by hilly tracts rising to elevations of from 100 to 2,500 feet. Along the whole line of the Coast the soil is fertile, and the villages are exceedingly populous. In the North-East the hills are covered with wood and the valleys but partially cultivated. The villages are seldom more than scattered hamlets of huts, and the population consists mainly of uncivilised aboriginal tribes, many of whom still wander from place to place as they find water to suit their fancy. Inland the District is well watered and well wooded. Except in the North-East, where much of it rises in large plateau, the country is a series of flat low-lying rice tracts, broken by well-marked ranges of hills. A considerable trade in firewood is carried on with Bombay; the sea fisheries are productive, and there is a lucrative salt industry. The Christians of Salsette and Bassein, a very strong community, are the descendants of the converts of St. Francis Xavier. Thana, the chief town, 21 miles North of Bombay, is a station on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. The fort, the Portuguese Cathedral, a few carved and inscribed stones, and several reservoirs are now the only signs that it was once an important city. There is a good travellers' bungalow. Bassein, on the Bombay, Baroda Railway, contains famous ruins of the Portuguese dominion in Salsette. For Bandora and Pali Hill, growing Suburbs of Bombay, see Bandra Street Directory.

The Wadhwan State in the Western India States Agency lies between 71 and 72 N. and 22 and 23 E. with an area of 242.6 square miles. It is bounded on the North by the territory of Dhrangadhra, on the South by the territory of Chuda and Limbdi and by the Dhandhuka Taluka of Ahmedabad District; on the East by the Limbdi State and on the West by Muli and Sayla territory. The country is compact and irrigated to some extent. The climate is hot but healthy. The annual rainfall averages about 20 inches.

The soil is black or light, in about equal proportion. Cotton and the usua grains are grown. Country soap which is largely used by the people of Kathiawar and Gujarat is the chief article of manufacture, but weaving and dyeing are also carried on and there are five Ginning factories and two Cotton presses. The produce of the State once exported from the Port of Dholera now goes by rail. There are also a Glass factory and the Joraversinhji Technochemical Works at Joravernagar, a village of this State.

Wadhwan is a fortified city and the Chief's palace, an imposing building when seen at a distance, occupies a commanding position in the Southern portion of the town. It is the main entrepot for the cotton trade of Jhalawad and has a wealthy community of merchants. A large import trade is also carried on in grain and cotton stuffs. The stone cutters and quarrymen are also skilled workmen. The Wadhwan State was founded in about A.D. 1630 by Rajoji, the son of Prathirajji, the eldest son of Raj Chandrasinhji of Halwad. It has acquired modern importance from being the Junction of the Wadhwan Branch of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway with the Bhavnagar, Morvi and Dhrangadhra lines. Wadhwan Civil Station, which is the headquarters of the Political Agent, Eastern Kathiawar Agency, is established on a plot of land leased from the Wadhwan State.

There is a temple of the celebrated Ranak Devi, consort of Rai Khengar of Junagadh, and an old step well called Madhavav in Wadhwan City.

The Civil Station and the City are connected by Railway as well as by a good metal road on which there are Tramway as well as motor services.

At Dudhrej, about two miles from the civil station, is a flourishing temple of the Mota Panth, a sect almost exclusively for the Rabaris (shepherds).
